

Hampshire Constabulary has made some improvements to how they identify, monitor and manage integrity issues

In 2011, the Home Secretary asked Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) to look at "instances of undue influence, inappropriate contractual arrangements and other abuses of power in police relationships with the media and other parties".

While the resulting report, Without Fear or Favour, found no evidence that corruption was endemic in police service relationships, it did not issue a clean bill of health. In particular, HMIC was concerned that few forces provided any policy or guidance in relation to key integrity issues, such as how to interact with the media, use of social media, and what second jobs are suitable for officers and staff. The report made several recommendations to help the service address these issues.

In 2012 HMIC revisited all forces to track progress against these recommendations.

In Hampshire, HMIC found:

- Since 2011 Hampshire Constabulary conducted an integrity 'health check', using the Self- Assessment Checklist provided in HMIC's 2011 report, Without Fear or Favour. It has updated policies around relationships with the media and receiving gifts and hospitality so that they incorporated recent national guidance, and taken steps to improve staff understanding of this revised guidance and what is considered acceptable.
- The force has revised its guidance to staff about how they should engage with the media. Since September 2011 the force has not investigated any instances of inappropriate disclosure to the media.
- Social media guidance was already in place before HMIC's 2011 visit; over the last year, the force has reiterated the expectations and boundaries around staff use of sites such as Facebook and Twitter. HMIC's independently commissioned research identified seven cases of inappropriate behaviour on Facebook or Twitter by officers and staff in Hampshire Constabulary, which have been referred back to the force..
- Hampshire Constabulary's policy for second jobs and business interests has recently been changed to incorporate new national guidance. Since September 2011 there have been 71 applications for second jobs, all but one of which have been approved.
- Data provided by the force to HMIC shows that there has been no change in the number of staff working in the anti-corruption unit since our 2011 inspection.

HM Inspector of Constabulary for the Eastern Region, Zoë Billingham, said:

“Hampshire Constabulary has made some progress in the way it manages integrity issues since HMIC last reviewed this in 2011. The improvements include making changes in the way staff deal with offers of gifts and hospitality, and how staff manage media relationships. However, more still needs to be done to ensure that staff are routinely using the new guidance.

Across the whole of England and Wales we found that the police service is making progress in how it monitors and safeguards relationships with the media, contractors and others; but we are concerned that changes nationally have not been implemented at a quicker pace.

HMIC will continue to monitor and inspect progress in order to provide the public with assurance that all forces are gripping these vital issues.”

The full report for Hampshire Constabulary, along with the national thematic review ‘Revisiting police relationships’, can be found at www.hmic.gov.uk

Notes to editors

1. A copy of the national report, Revisiting Police Relationships, and individual force reports can be found on the HMIC website www.hmic.gov.uk
2. In 2011, the Home Secretary asked Her Majesty’s Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) to look at “instances of undue influence, inappropriate contractual arrangements and other abuses of power in police relationships with the media and other parties”. The resulting report, Without Fear or Favour, was based on an inspection of all 43 forces in England and Wales, as well as the British Transport Police (BTP), the National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA) and, at its request, the Police Service of Northern Ireland (PSNI). We also ran telephone surveys to find out if the public thought corruption was a problem for the Service, and looked at police use of social media. The 2011 report can be found on the HMIC website www.hmic.gov.uk
3. The revisit used the 2011 criteria and was based on self assessments by 44 forces (including the British Transport Police), supported by inspection work in July and August 2012. HMIC also repeated and extended the surveys of public opinion on the range and type of corruption issues in the police service, and of police use of social media.
4. Her Majesty’s Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) is an independent inspectorate, inspecting policing in the public interest, and rigorously examines the efficiency and effectiveness of police forces and authorities to tackle crime and terrorism, improve criminal justice and raise confidence. HMIC inspects and regulates all 43 police forces in England and Wales together with other major policing bodies such as the Serious Organised Crime Agency, the Police Service of Northern Ireland and the British Transport Police.
5. For further information, HMIC’s press office can be contacted during office hours from 8:30am – 5:30pm Monday – Friday on 0203 513 0600.
6. HMIC’s out-of-hours press office line for urgent media enquiries is 07836 217 729.