

Humberside Police has made good progress in achieving its savings for the comprehensive spending review period.

Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) has today published a report on Humberside Police's progress in meeting the challenges of the 2010 comprehensive spending review.

A thematic report, Policing in Austerity: One Year On, found that police forces across England and Wales have risen to the financial challenge of the spending review, cutting their spending while largely maintaining the service they provide to the public; but HMIC has some concerns about whether all forces have transformed their efficiency to the extent that this can be sustained through the next three years (and into future spending reviews).

Based on the data provided by the force, HMIC found that:

- Humberside Police needs to save £23 million between March 2011 and March 2015. By spring 2012, they had planned how to save 99% of this amount.
- The force is planning to cut its total workforce number (i.e. police officers, police staff and police community support officers) by 700 between March 2010 and March 2015.
- 440 of these will be police officer posts; this means there will be 21% fewer officers in Humberside (compared with a 10% average officer reduction across England and Wales).
- The force plans to have 70% of its workforce in frontline roles by 2015, which is a lower proportion than most other forces.
- The proportion of officers in frontline roles will increase between March 2010 and March 2015 (from 79% to 85%) Again, this means Humberside Police will have a lower proportion of police officers on the front line than most other forces.
- Crime levels are stable in Humberside, while nationally crime has gone down.
- 84% of victims in Humberside are satisfied with the overall service provided by the force, which is line with England and Wales as a whole.

HM Inspector of Constabulary for the Northern Region, Roger Baker, said:

"Humberside Police has put in place a comprehensive change programme to manage the reductions in its budget. As a result they are in a good position to achieve their savings target by March 2015.

“However, by the end of the savings review period Humberside Police will have a lower proportion of its police officers in frontline policing than in most other forces. The force should consider how it can improve its crime fighting capacity to help keep the public in Humberside safe.”

8. Her Majesty’s Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) carried out an inspection of all 43 police forces in England and Wales in spring 2011, to see how they were planning to meet this financial challenge. When the results were published in July 2011 (search for ‘Valuing the Police’ on www.hmic.gov.uk), we committed to returning one year later to report on progress, and to assess whether there had been any impact on the service provided to the public.
