

Wiltshire Police has made good progress in achieving its savings for the comprehensive spending review period.

Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) has today published a report on Wiltshire Police's progress in meeting the challenges of the 2010 comprehensive spending review.

A thematic report, Policing in Austerity: One Year On, found that police forces across England and Wales have risen to the financial challenge of the spending review, cutting their spending while largely maintaining the service they provide to the public; but HMIC has some concerns about whether all forces have transformed their efficiency to the extent that this can be sustained through the next three years (and into future spending reviews).

Based on the data provided by the force, HMIC found that:

- Wiltshire Police needs to save £13 million between March 2011 and March 2015. By spring 2012, they had planned how to save 100% of this amount.
- The force is planning to cut its total workforce number (i.e. police officers, police staff and police community support officers) by 270 between March 2010 and March 2015.
- 120 of these will be police officer posts; this means there will be 10% fewer officers in Wiltshire (which is in line with the average officer reduction across England and Wales).
- However, the proportion of officers in frontline roles will increase between March 2010 and March 2015 (from 80% to 91%). This means Wiltshire Police will have a greater proportion of police officers on the front line than most other forces.
- Wiltshire Police recorded one of the lowest crime rates in England and Wales between December 2010 and December 2011.
- 83% of crime victims were satisfied with the service they received from Wiltshire Police, which is in line with national figures.

HM Inspector of Constabulary for the Western Region, Dru Sharpling, said:

“Wiltshire Police has a history of bringing down costs while increasing efficiency, and this put them in a good position to address the financial challenge of the 2010 spending review.

“We found that the force is on track to achieve their savings target by March 2015. Although the result will be a smaller workforce, Wiltshire Police is planning to increase the proportion of people who are in frontline roles. This should place the force in a strong position to keep their communities safe, and to maintain the low levels of crime in Wiltshire.”
